Which data are processed by the University of Mannheim?

The university processes data with regard to the cooperation activities that are visibly collected in the questionnaire. In paper-based questionnaires, the survey data are generated by scanning in the form of image files by means of a special software, transmitting these to a protected server, processing the questionnaire numbers and the handwritten texts within the text boxes and evaluating the given answers. In case of an online survey, the university stores the name of the survey, the individual transaction number (TAN) or passcode, the e-mail address to which the TAN was sent, as well as the status of participation in form of a yes/no answer. Each given answer receives a time stamp which is stored with the raw data of the survey. The university does not store any IP addresses so that it is not possible to determine which IP address is connected to which set of data. The survey data do not contain any information about which TAN or passcode was used to fill out the questionnaire. In case the survey data are transmitted via e-mail, the completed questionnaire cannot be traced back to the TAN or passcode.

Recipients

The data collected in the survey are evaluated by means of an evaluation software. The University of Mannheim has entered into a support and maintenance contract as well as a contract on data processing complying with the requirements specified in Art. 28 GDPR with the company Electric Paper Evaluationstechnik GmbH.

Recipients of the survey results that cannot be traced back to individual participants of the survey are the coordinators and members of the TransForm! consortium at the University of Mannheim. Upon request, the survey results must also be provided to the President’s Office if necessary in order to fulfill its duties according to the LHG. Please note: In the event of publication to consortium members of other universities, survey results can be traced back neither to answers given by individual participants nor to their faculty/department membership.

Storage and erasure of data

The entities responsible for evaluation and the coordinators of the network group at the University of Mannheim can store the raw data obtained in the context of surveys for a period up to one year and the aggregated data related to individual questions of a survey also for a period up to one year.
